Seeing Is Eating: How and When Activation of a Negative Stereotype Increases
Stereotype-Conducive Behavior

MARGARET C. CAMPBELL
GINA S. MOHR

References

Aarts, Henk, Tanya L. Chartrand, Ruud Custers, Unna Danner, Giel Dik, Valerie E. Jefferis, and Cognition, 23 (6), 465–90.

American Psychologist, 54 (7), 462–79.

Bargh, John A., Peter M. Gollwitzer, Annette Lee-Chai, Kimberly Barndollar, and Roman

in Social Psychological Research: Conceptual, Strategic, and Statistical Considerations,” Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, 51 (6), 1173–82.

Dissimiliarity, and the Abandonment of Cultural Tastes,” Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, 95 (3), 593–607.

Blair, Irene V. and Mahzarin R. Banaji (1996), “Automatic and Controlled Processes in Chartrand, Tanya L. and John A. Bargh (1999), “The Chameleon Effect: The Perception-Behavior Link and Social Interaction,” Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, 76 (6), 893–910.

Network over 32 Years,” New England Journal of Medicine, 357 (4), 370–79.

Wansink, Brian (2006), Mindless Eating: Why We Eat More than We Think, New York: Bantam-Dell.

